The 29-acre Spit Preserve is named for the prominent sand spit that defines the entrance to Fisherman Bay. This rich and varied property protects rare coastal dunes and wetlands, a grassy headland, and approximately 1 mile of shoreline. The parking area offers an outhouse and room for 8 vehicles. Trails lead through an old orchard and former homestead site, then down to the sand spit. Visitors are asked to take extra care to remain on designated trails on the spit. The plants of this special habitat are vulnerable to trampling, while nesting and foraging birds are disrupted by off-trail people and dogs.

This preserve was purchased in part with funds from the Washington State Recreation and Conservation Office.
